Get a little bit of pushkar in your tea cup at Shree Gangour Sweets near Girgaum Chowpatty. And if you're wondering what that is, let's break it to you. This shop has been selling a healthy cup of tea with flavours of Rajasthan in it. The chi is legit made using jadi booti! There's an old man outside the sweet shop who mixes your normal milk tea with Gando Bawal's bark. Gando is a tree usually found in certain areas of Rajasthan and Gujarat. It is addressed as a 'Bawal' because it ends up randomly growing anywhere. However, its bark has nutritional values. It is scraped from the tree and put right into your tea. Interesting, isn't it?

Vogue Warriors: Meet the businesswoman who has distributed over 2,50,000 meals to Mumbai's poor since the lockdown

BY SHREEE GOMES GUPTA
13 MAY 2020

Deepa Tracy's Mantra Foundation has been providing daily lunches for the underprivileged in Mumbai since March

The picture of uneaten chapatis on the railway tracks in Maharashtra, where 16 migrants were mowed down, is an unforgettable sight that points at the escalating horrors and the humanitarian crisis that COVID-19 has unleashed in India. Businesswoman and film producer, Deepa Tracy had the foresight to see this burgeoning crisis when she decided to step up and feed the hungry. "In March, the idea started as a conversation at home with my family wanting to provide food to the poorest of the poor in our local communities." Tracy's initial target was "at least 1,000 people daily, for as long as we could, till the lockdown was over."

With the support of close family and friends, Tracy, who started her family-run NGO Mantra Foundation, 20 years ago, not only put the plan in action but also scaled up the food drive and launched Covidreliefindia.org, which is feeding thousands by raising funds through a meal sponsorship donation program at Rs 40 per person.

Community matters

As funds started trickling in, she tied up with three kitchens (Midday Food in Andheri East, Shree Gangour Sweets in Juhu and Shree Krishna in Goregaon) in suburban Mumbai to provide lunch not only to daily wage earners, stranded in the city with no money or jobs, but also to beggars on the brink of starvation. Within a few days, 10,000 food boxes were going out daily, and continue to do so even today.
